

‘Working towards women’s freedom from violence’

Tuesday 8th March 2016

The Violence Against Women group has for over thirty years provided a feminist space for academics, students, practitioners and activists to network, share ideas, foster thoughts and interests and thus support each member in working to combat violence against women. We are delighted to see the continued development of this group.

Coinciding with the International Day of the Woman, this seminar will focus on some of the innovative work supporting women’s freedom from violence. The day will provide an arena to engage in discussions around contemporary approaches to the violence against women agenda.
