

Work, Employment and Society

Associate Board 2018 – 2020: Call for New Members

Deadline for Applications: 09 November 2017, 17:00 (GMT)

Work, Employment and Society invites applications to join its Associate Board. The Associate Board is a flexible way for individuals to become involved in the ongoing success of the journal, which does not require the same time commitment as membership of the Editorial Board.

We are recruiting 8 new Associate Board members this year. Successful candidates will become members of the Board from January 2018, for a period of three years.

Associate Board Composition and Operation

The WES Associate Board is made up of 30 scholars, both junior and senior academics, who commit themselves to reviewing up to 10 papers a year for the journal.

The Associate Board is a 'virtual entity' and, after an initial training session, there will be no face-to-face meetings of the Board.

Being a member of the Associate Board means being professionally associated with Work, Employment and Society, one of the most highly-regarded journals in its field.

Eligibility

The Associate Board is open to both junior and senior academics with a PhD, or equivalent, in any area covered by the journal or in a relevant subject. International and UK applications will be considered. You do not need to be a member of the BSA to apply for a position on the Associate Board; however successful candidates are required to join the Association.

Candidates should provide evidence of publication in a peer review journal (particular preference for articles in WES) and of their experience of peer reviewing in their applications.

WES is not able to accept candidates from the same institution as the incoming Editorial Team (Middlesex University). In addition to this, there cannot be more than two members of the Associate Board from the same institution at any given time.

The Associate Board requires members with a broad range of expertise, although preference will be given to those whose expertise is in demand by the journal. The following areas of expertise are particularly needed:

- Gender
- Quantitative Methods
- Social Movements
- Migrant Labour

How to Apply

The online application form and further information about applying to the Editorial Board can be found online at: <https://pre.ukenvote.uk/britsocwesab>

If you have queries about the application process, please contact UK Engage, who are running the election process at: britsoc@uk-engage.org

If you have any questions about the role, please contact Professor Jacqueline O'Reilly (Chair of the Editorial Board) at J.O'Reilly@brighton.ac.uk