

Annual Conference Streams

Annual Conference Streams

The overarching conference streams are broad representations of the themes and areas of research within Sociology. For logistical and operational reasons we have to limit the number of streams at present. All of the current BSA study groups are included within the listings under the overarching streams. The streams are organic in nature, allowing suggestions for development of the existing streams.

At the 2019 Annual Conference, there will be 16 streams, including 'Frontiers'. A summary of these streams identifying where each study group currently sits within the existing streams is included below and now on the BSA website.

Prospective paper givers can indicate which group they would like their abstract to be considered for. There is now a message on the submission page of the conference web pages to reflect this, as follows:

"If you would like your abstract to be considered for one of the specific subject areas listed under the overarching streams, it is essential to write the subject area in CAPITAL letters at the top of your abstract e.g. I would like this abstract to be submitted to the SOCIOLOGY OF RIGHTS grouping within the RIGHTS, VIOLENCE AND CRIME stream."

'Frontiers' (formerly the Open Stream)

This stream provides a forum for new, innovative, multi and interdisciplinary work. Frontiers provides a footing for emerging sociologists, new and/or pioneering study groups, sociologists working outside academia and new ways of presenting / engaging sociologically.

- Activism in Sociology Forum
- Disability Study Group
- Sociology, Psychoanalysis and the Psychosocial

Roles and responsibilities

The BSA Board of Trustees is normally responsible for the conference theme and for inviting stream coordinators and study group convenors to submit proposals for special sessions which might take the form of, for example, a stream plenary, symposium, panel, or workshop. The BSA Conference Committee will invite keynote plenaries which will address the conference theme. This should include British Sociologists. The BSA President will be responsible for organising presidential sessions.

All abstracts will be submitted directly to the BSA office, using the standard online submission form. Direct contact from the Events Team at the BSA Office with all presenters will ensure that all important information for presenters is standardized.

Stream co-ordinators will receive notification of allocated space within the programme from the BSA office. This allocation will be based on the percentage of abstracts submitted. Stream co-ordinators will review and accept abstracts submitted to their stream and group similar papers together to fit into the conference programme, liaising closely with the relevant study group convenors where appropriate. To assist with this the BSA will provide a contact list of all stream coordinators and study group convenors.

The stream coordinators will notify the BSA office of all decisions about abstracts submitted. The BSA office will inform presenters of their acceptance or rejection in the programme. Further correspondence with presenters will be with the BSA office who will liaise with stream coordinators and/or BSA Board of Trustees as appropriate.

Succession planning

Stream coordinators are able to continue in the role for as long as they wish to do so. After each annual conference stream coordinators will be asked to confirm their intention to continue in the role for the coming year. Should any stream coordinator wish to step down from the role, the BSA will issue a call for a new stream coordinator. In addition to this, the BSA reserves the right to replace at short notice stream coordinators who are unable to fulfil their role as the failure of the annual conference is a major risk to the association.

A call for new stream coordinator will require that applicants are:

- A BSA member
- An Active Study Group member within the BSA
- Subject Area Specialist
- UK Based

Applicants will also be asked to provide a 150 word supporting statement to assist the conference committee in the selection process.

Changes to stream structure

The BSA Conference Committee is responsible for reviewing the stream structure every three years. The BSA Office holds a list of current stream coordinators, please contact the BSA Events Team for contact details if required.

Proposals for changes or additions should be submitted to the BSA Conference Committee via the BSA Events Team at events@britsoc.org.uk

The conference committee will respond to proposals as soon as possible.

Abstract Review and Selection Process

The review selection process will involve two main elements.

1. All abstracts will be reviewed independently for their relevance to sociology. Abstracts must therefore demonstrate that the presentation relates to developments or applications of sociology and/or contributes to theoretical or methodological debates in this area.

2. Where the number of abstracts submitted which meet this criterion exceed the number of programme slots available, then the following criteria will be used:

- Clarity
- Rigour
- Potential to promote discussion

Clarity refers to abstracts being written in clear and intelligible English. Rigour relates either to demonstrating evidence of rigorous research design with the context of the chosen methodology or to the consistent development of a theoretical argument/position. Promoting discussion relates to the significance, originality and timeliness of the presentation.
