

Jason Arday is Professor of Sociology of Education at the University of Cambridge, Faculty of Education, and a Fellow at Jesus College, Cambridge. He was formerly a Guest Editor on BBC Radio 4's Today Programme.

Professor Arday has previously held the position of Professor of Sociology of Education at the University of Glasgow, School of Education; Associate Professor in Sociology at Durham University in the Department of Sociology; and Deputy Executive Dean for People and Culture in the Faculty of Social Science and Health.

Jason is a Patron of the Adult Literacy Trust (ALT) and Get Further. He was formerly a Trustee of the Runnymede Trust, the UK's leading Race Equality Thinktank for 11 years. Presently, he is a Trustee of the British Sociological Association (BSA) and Autism Action.

Jason sits on the NHS Race and Health Observatory Academic Reference Group and the ITV Cultural Advisory Council.