Call for Book Proposals: Vernon Series in Sociology

We invite proposals for monographs and collections of essays for our book in Series in Sociology. The series welcomes proposals on a wide range of topics related to sociology and sociological research. We are interested in work that is relevant to contemporary issues and debates, though will also consider work that revisits classic debates in sociology or takes an interdisciplinary perspective.

Some of the books in the series include:

Network Society: How Social Relations rebuild Space(s)

Designing Technology, Work, Organizations and Vice Versa

Care and Well-being in Old Age

Past works in the series have engaged with topics of high societal and practical relevance at the local and global level. Nevertheless, the series is also open to high quality works that may be elsewhere seen as too theoretical or too specialized to merit publication. Contributions from both established and younger scholars from all parts of the world are welcome. More information on what we look for in a proposal is available on our website.

If you have an idea for a book-length writing project in Sociology, or if you would like to edit a multi-author book with us, we would be delighted to hear from you.
